

-Short rhymes about size: body size, heart size and head size

-1 website, 3 pages

-Event states: click to change from page to page, resize window to view poems (content connected to the way the website functions)

-Each page has 2 sizes: small and big. For each size there is a small poem, part of which changes when the user resizes the window within the boundaries of the specific size. There are 3 alternative changes for each size.

-Next to the short rhymes there will be portrait photographs of people in different moods. These will also appear randomly with the parts of the poems that change.

-On the top right side there will be a small button in order to take the user to the rest of the pages of the website. The pages will load randomly.

-A small “resize me” note will be visible at the bottom of the page

BODY:

big:

His blood filled the whole sea, that's how big his body would be
He could not even swim in the sea, that's how big his body would be A ship could only carry him in the sea, how big his body would be small:

She is thin because she can swim
She is thin because she went up a hill
She is thin because she will not sit

HEAD:

big:

He had such a big head maybe it was because he read
He had such a big head he found every book easy to be read
He had such a big head he could talk to the dead

small:

His head is small since he hit a wall

His head is small since he will only play ball

His head is small since he is above all

HEART:

big:

He has such a big heart but don't even make me start

He has such a big heart but he can love sugar more than art

He has such a big heart but I don't know what to write in this part
